

Forum aktueller Architektur in Köln 23.09.–30.09.

plan, a platform for presentations and communication on the subject of architecture and urban planning, is being held for the seventh time since 1999.

Various architects, artists and urban planners will present their projects, ideas and visions in a series of independent exhibitions at various venues throughout the city. Internationally renowned architects as well as young unknown talents take advantage of this open forum and festival that attracts professionals from media, companies, politics and institutions as well as a broad audience interested in architecture, art and culture.

This year's main focus will be again on "housing". After examining urban development between inner city and periphery in 2004, plan05 has a look at the special and the temporary "in-between".

Especially the wide range of housing forms visualises the variety of architectural answers. The present change of social parameters generates projects that translate specific ideas for living and housing into action. It is also interesting to look at, by now historic, utopian ideals and their influence on today's discussion.

For the third time the plan-price will be awarded. An independent jury pick the best presentation of a project during the plan05-week.

We, as initiators, manage the co-ordination and communication for the project plan05: public relation, production of the program guide and the plan05-website. Within the plan-program we organise the "meetingpoint" as central point for information and events, this time in the Museum Ludwig.
